Interview Questions

- Current process
  1. How do you currently manage lost and found items from the time an item is reported or handed in until it is returned to its owner?

  2. What information do you currently record when a lost or found item is reported or handed in, and where is it recorded?

- Problems experienced

  3. What difficulties or problems do you currently experience when managing lost and found items?

  4. At which point in the current lost –and- found process do delays, missing information or other difficulties usually occur? (follow up) And what consequences do these problems have for staff and for people trying to recover their belongings?

- Intended users

  5. Who currently participates in the lost-and- found process, and what responsibilities does each person have?

  6. Who would need to use or manage a proposed lost-and-found system, and what would each type of user need to do?

- Mobile and web functions

  7. What activities would you expect students or other members of the public to be able to perform through a mobile application?

  8. What activities would staff need to perform through a web-based system to manage lost-and- found items?

- Information, reports, access and security

  9. What information, records, or reports would be useful to you when managing lost and found items?

  10. Who should have access to the information, and what privacy/security concerns should we consider?